

Wild December 2009 Freakout!
Dec 14th, 2009 by

Lots and lots of activity on tap for December 2009. Since this month begun there has already been an amazing load of transformational activity going on. This is really a time that affords you the opportunity to observe the role that you play in this world. Look at who you are, what you do, what drives you. See if you can see if that which drives you is of the light or, is keeping you grounded to the earth.

The energy around and in our planet is very polarized and, is resulting in all sorts of weird situations. For instance one week Obama is making an announcement that he's going to send more troops to the middle east. The next week following he's going to Norway to accept his peace prize. Doesn't this seem a bit whacky to you? It does me, just roll with it, the world is rigged to be whacky in this regard.

Lots of galactic events are underway, 2010 is going to be one hell of a ride, I'm going to give you a summery of what's been going on based on my own transmissions and, on information I've gathered from various sources around the internet.

For starters on November 8th we entered into the Sixth night of the Galactic underworld according to the Mayan calendar. That along is enough to send us humans into a tailspin. I'm not going to go into depth into the mayan cycles related to November 8th, just be aware that such an event has come to pass and, you as a human being have been given another load of information to process as a result.

More info on this event you can read at the following link. here:http://www.calleman.com/content/articles/nov8\_sixth\_night.htm.

The sixth night has brought a whole new load of information for us to process over the coming months until the 7th day comes to pass on November 3rd, 2010. Check out Calleman's presentation on the underworld here: http://www.calleman.com/content/ppt\_slides/img6.html for more info.

Then let's look at November 11th which according to some was the start of the "Triad Star Gates Of Love" with the 2nd and Third gates to open on 12-12 (Just passed 2 days ago) and 12-21. In short it's being said our planet is getting showered in pure love energy and, this is the time for you to use to receive this energy and rid yourself of anything that no longer serves you. For that which no longer serves you will not be able to exist in this new light. There's other takes on this turn of events also linking it to the 12/09 Norway spiral, I would take it for what speaks to you from within your heart and, afford yourself the opportunity to reflect and purge.

There have been many takes and thoughts on the spiral that appeared in Norway on December 9th, personally I don't think it was anything "earthbound" but that's just my opinion. Some say the spiral was a star-gate that opened up to allow the passage of thousands of spacecraft into the earth's atmosphere.

Some others say it was a result of a russian rocket, and even others think it was a demonstration of a microwave based weapon of mass destruction. I invite you to suspend belief and draw your own conclusion. As I've said before "belief" is limiting and, does nothing but close you off to new possibility. At this stage of rapid human evolution the last thing anyone needs is limiting thought. Any suspension of "belief" will prove to only benefit your own understanding.

On the astrological front it appears that Mercury will be retrograde and in Capricorn from 12-5-09 till 2-10-10. Which according to the astrological guru's it's a good time to finish old projects.

The new moon is due to start on December 16th, in which time we have the opportunity to really ponder ourselves and, our roles on this planet. What is it that we really love and desire? What is it that we really want to do with our time here? How much of what we are doing in our current lives are serving to manifest our destiny? This period will conclude on 12/21 which also will bring about the final "Gate Of Love". I've always used this period of year from Thanksgiving to Christmas to reflect on my life in the past 12 months and see what I have accomplished, what I didn't and, what I might do in the coming year to further my destiny. I think it's very cool that in addition to my normal personal yearly ritual all these galactic events are also happening. If anything, it lends a certain mystical vanity to my yearly pondering.

The bottom line during this time is, that you continue to remain balanced, happy, and feeling good. Some of us are probably doing some hardcore processing that might include lots of chemicals, staying in bed and trying to unplug from the rest of the world. This is also ok, as long as it's part of the process for you to move forward. Key here is forward progression! Enjoy the ride!